Mission Statement

The Dunn County Humane Society (DCHS) is dedicated to improving the lives of companion animals in our community and finding permanent and loving adoptive homes for the animals in our care. DCHS promotes the humane treatment of animals and operates as a no-kill facility, a philosophy that has been with the organization from the beginning. We do not forfeit the life of one animal to make space for another. All incoming animals are evaluated, medically treated and rehabilitated when possible. DCHS is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that relies on the good will and generosity of individuals and corporations.

Safe Summer Fun With Your Pet

Now that summer is finally here, we all want to be outside enjoying the nice weather but before you head out there with your dog it is good to remember that their reaction to the heat is somewhat different than ours. Dehydration in dogs is a real possibility during the summer since they get much more thirsty than we do when they get hot. When planning an outing with your pup, be sure you have plenty of fresh, clean water and can provide shade for your dog. Watch for these possible symptoms of overheating: heavy panting, thick drool, vomiting, diarrhea and wobbly legs. If your pet shows signs of heat exhaustion, move them to a cool place, give them a drink of water, put a damp towel over their body, and get them to the vet ASAP. It can be tempting to place your pet in cold water when they are overheated, but doing so can put them into shock so avoid doing that.

Car rides are a favorite activity for many dogs and there is nothing like the smile on a dog's face as they enjoy the wind on their face as you drive down the road. If you are going to be making a stop somewhere that pets are not allowed it may be best to leave them at home or have a friend that can stay in the running car with them while you are running your errand. Even with temperatures that are not what we would consider extreme it can take less than 10 minutes for a vehicle to become hot enough for a dog or cat (or child) to develop heat stroke with or without the windows cracked open (see graphic on next page).

Beaches and parks are great places to go during the summer with your dog! If you are planning to spend a day out in the sun with your furry companion (especially thin furred, light skinned pups), apply sunscreen every 3-4 hours to the least hair-covered spots: bellies, ears, and nose (use only pet safe sunscreens). Pets heat and cool from the bottom up. If you are out in the sun together, try to keep your pet off of hot surfaces like cement and asphalt. With a temperature of just 87° in the hot summer sun can raise the temperature of asphalt roads to a dangerous 143°. Temperatures of 95° degrees can bring sand to over 125° and cement up to 125°. If the asphalt, sidewalk or sand is too hot for people to walk on barefoot, it is definitely too hot for a dog's paws. With the temperatures mentioned above, paw pad burns can happen in just 1 minute so beware. A good rule of paw is to rest your hand on the pavement for seven seconds and if it is too hot for your hand wait till the temperature is cooler for your outdoor activity. So as you get ready for all of those great summer activities take a few moments to make sure your dog is prepared for a hot summer day too!

PREVENT HEAT RELATED DEATHS KNOW THE FACTS

Car temperatures rise much more quickly than most people realize. It does not take long for a vehicle to become hot enough to cause heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

Health Benefits of Pet Ownership

Mara Shimko, BSN, RN

Humans have been shown to benefit physically and mentally from pet ownership - something that many pet owners know well. These benefits include (but are not limited to):

- Less stress, anxiety & depression
- Reduced feelings of loneliness & provides social connection
- Boosts mood
- Promotes physical activity
- Improves Heart health

Physical Activity & Heart Benefits

Pets may provide a person with a sense of purpose, responsibility and structure to their daily life. Dogs specifically, are required to go outside for their basic needs which gets their owner outside for fresh air and activity on a daily basis. Playing with a pet can help people feel more relaxed and decrease blood pressure. Physical activity and a reduction in blood pressure can prevent plaque build up in arteries and lower cholesterol levels. This ultimately lowers risk of developing cardiovascular disease.

Reduce Stress, Anxiety & Depression

Companionship and strong bonds are often created in pet ownership. People talk, walk, eat, play, and even sleep with their pets. This human to pet bond can additionally aid in evening out human hormones, such as cortisol, dopamine and oxytocin. Cortisol is responsible for stress, affects our immunity, weight maintenance and is a culprit in several health conditions. On the other hand, Dopamine and oxytocin are the brain chemicals that help us feel good. This hormonal release can decrease stress, anxiety, reduce risk for illness, provide us with positive feelings and boost our mood. It can also help increase social interaction, and decrease loneliness and depressive states.

Health Conditions

Those with mental health illnesses, such as PTSD (or post-traumatic stress disorder) are known to reap these benefits too. A 2022 Johns Hopkins study reports 84% of people with PTSD who bonded with a service dog showed a dramatic decrease in symptoms, so much so that 40% of those were able to taper down their medications.

Pet-human relationships may even benefit children in general and especially with specific conditions, such as ADHD or Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder and autism spectrum disorders. Pets have shown to reduce their anxiety levels, increase focus, provide sensory benefits, aid in social skills and provide a calming presence.

Aside from mental health conditions, dogs have specifically been known to help people with seizures, cancer, blindness and immobility.

The big takeaway from all of this is that pets can be beneficial to almost everyone!

More Information

Approximately 68% of homes in the U.S. report owning a pet (NIH, 2018). As mentioned above, pets are helpful to the body and mind in various ways, whether it is decreasing stress and risk of illness, or comforting us when we are ill, calming a child, or providing a companion for an elderly person. For more information, reference studies reported by the CDC, NIH, American Heart Association and The John Hopkins University that have revealed positive health outcomes for people with pets. You may also visit The Dunn County Humane Society for testimonies on the health recipients of pet ownership.
